JUNE TERM OF COURT IS NOW WELL UNDER WAY; NO CASES.

Squire Henry O'Neil of Smithfield Is Named Foreman of the Grand Jury by Judge Umbel.

COURT'S CHARGE COMMONPLACE

Only Point Where Judge Umbel Differed From the Routine Was to Suggest More Finger Boards on Public Roads—Other Court News.

UNIONTOWNS, June 7.—The June term of court began this morning but up to noon only the charge of the Grand Jury had been accomplished. When the 24 men composing this body assembled before the court, Judge R. E. Umbel named Squire Henry O'Neil of Smithfield as the foreman. Squire Ridge, who acted as the honor was passed on to Squire Henry O'Neil of Smithfield. Mr. O'Neil was reluctant to accept, but the honor was pressed upon him and he yielded to the request of the court.

The charge to the Grand Jury was commonplace. The jurors were instructed as to their duties and the details of the work were explained. Then Judge Umbel digressed long enough to suggest to the Grand Jurors and the Constables that more finger boards are needed at cross roads. It has come to the court's knowledge, said the judge, that these are badly needed in some quarters. He recommended the matter to be taken up immediately with the various supervisors.

The charge to the Grand Jurors and the returns of the Constables throughout the county took up all the time until noon and no cases were called for trial. Upon motion of Attorney D. W. McDonald the prosecution against Frank Lyons for stealing a dinner pail was squashed because the value of the article was not stated.

The Marietta Hotel at Connellville was granted another 30 days in which to complete the repairs under way. The house will not be required to open until July 10.

Hampton Miller has instituted proceedings of divorce against his wife, Henrietta Miller. Infidelity is the charge and W. T. Eckard is named as correspondent.

The report of the Poor House Directors was filed. It was a lengthy document, more detailed than the report included in the report of the Board of County Auditors. During the past year 233 people have been sheltered in the County Home; $10,000 was expended in outside relief work while good work was performed by the Ladies Aid Society, having charge of the juvenile work. The directors had words of praise for Mrs. H. L. Rankin, the President, and Mrs. A. F. Bowle, the Secretary of the organization.

The license of the Central Hotel at Dunbar originally granted Frank J. McFarland was this morning transferred to Edward Clark. The license of Hotel Alexander at South Brownsville was transferred to Charles W. Rush and George O. Rush. The license was originally granted to Charles W. Rush.

William A. Edmiston of Brownsville was this morning appointed a committee in lunacy for Daniel F. Hill to fill the vacancy of Emanuel Campbell, deceased. Edmiston gave bond for $50,000.

MOTHER KILLS SON AND SELF IN HOME

She Was Despondent Because Husband Was Kept Away From Home So Much.

United Press Telegram.
SALEM, O., June 7.—With a revolver lightly clutched in her right hand, the body of Mrs. G. V. Sharp, a prominent society woman and wife of the wealthy Cleveland paper manufacturer, was found dead here today in her bedroom lying beside the body of her 12-year-old son, Harold. The boy had been shot behind the right ear and the woman's death was the result of a wound in the roof of her mouth.

The woman is said to have been despondent because her husband's business necessitated his spending much of his time in Cleveland. The husband, G. V. Sharp, is one of the largest stockholders in the Union Wall Paper Company. The woman also worked because her son was suffering from an apparently incurable illness.

HAS STOPPED RAINING.

Indications Are That There is Good Weather Ahead.

According to appearances the weather man has relented and will give a pretty fair variety of the article for a day or so, at least. The rain which continued pretty much all last week ceased over Saturday night and Sunday was a glorious day.

It started out well this morning, clouded up a short time around 10 o'clock, but the sun came out once more and gave evidence of standing pat.

The mercury this morning stood at 70 degrees, two higher than yesterday morning.

CROWELL LEADS IN WESTMORELAND

But J. E. B. Cunningham Refuses to Concede Judicial Defeat.

JAMES S. BEACON OUT OF IT

Close Contests Develop in Greene County Where Many Democrats Would Be Sheriff—Smithfield Wins in Washington.

GREENSBURG, June 7.—Although unofficial returns from 118 of the 178 elections districts of Westmoreland county indicate that Charles C. Crowell is leading by 720 votes for the Republican nomination for Common Pleas court judge, James E. B. Cunningham, his nearest competitor, in the three-cornered fight, is unwilling to admit defeat. In the districts heard from Crowell has 1,896 and the Cunningham 4,178. James S. Beacom, the third man in the fight, is hopeless behind.

Over 10,000 votes were cast in the districts heard from. It is not believed that more than 11,000 were cast in the entire county, and Cunningham must make a remarkable showing in the precincts from which returns have not been received to win. Cunningham carried Greensburg, getting 503 to Crowell's 273 and Boncants 103. In addition he received a plurality in Rankin and Scitdale. Crowell led in Monongahela, Mt. Pleasant, Irwin, West Newton, New Kensington, Jeannette and Derry, Hempfield township went strongly for Crowell. Crowell estimated that he will win by 800.

William T. Dom, Jr., and Harry N. Yout were nominated for District Attorney and Probationary, respectively. Without opposition John M. Hawk, the present Clerk of Courts, is holding Hugh Henderson by 1,155 votes in 75 precincts. Judge Lucien W. Doty has no opposition on the Democratic ticket, and Hillary J. Keenan was nominated for District Attorney on the same ticket without opposition. Big fields of candidates on both tickets sought nomination for Poor Director and Jury Commissioner, but no effort was made to tabulate their votes.

WAYNESBURG, June 7.—The primary election in Greene county showed several close contests, which will require official count to determine. The office for sheriff in the Democratic party, on which there were five candidates, was won by Deputy Sheriff James White of Waynesburg. James P. Morris of Holbrook is the Republican nominee. For Poor Director Enlow Patterson of East Waynesburg won upon the Democratic ticket and William Stewart, also of East Waynesburg, upon the Republican ticket. For coroner Albert T. Allison of Franklin township is the Democratic nominee. No other candidates. For Jury Commissioner the race is close between John Roberts and Andrew Amos, Democrats, and Perry Pethel and J. A. Virgin, Republicans. D. L. Sayers is elected delegate to the Republican State convention and J. L. Carpenter, J. M. McGuffey and Jesse H. Wise delegates to the Democratic State convention.

An Attempted Robbery.
An attempt was made to break into George Vosebeck's grocery store on Main street West Side last night. The burglar had gained an entrance to the cellar by breaking a window. While trying to get in to the store room they awakened John Patrick who lives over the store. As a result they were frightened away.

Suit Against Railroad.
Robert Stewart of Scott Haven has brought suit against the Baltimore & Ohio railroad to recover $5,000 for injuries received when he was struck by an engine.

JUDGE R. E. UMBEL IS THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE; H. S. DUMBAULD BADLY BEATEN.

His Average Throughout Fayette County Is About 2 to 1.

Interest centered Saturday on the fight for the Democratic judicial nomination and Judge R. E. Umbel was victorious by an overwhelming majority over his opponent, H. S. Dumbauld. Dumbauld was a poor second in the race and Judge Umbel's vote will more than double that of Dumbauld.

It is estimated that Judge Umbel will have a 3,000 majority over Dumbauld. The returns are coming in fast but as yet there is no concerted effort to find the official returns. A few candidates are busy in the Probationary's office in Uniontown cleaning the returns that interest them most, but many important districts are yet missing.

It is said that Dumbauld has failed to make even a creditable showing in Saltsburg and Springfield townships, where his friends claimed he would sweep the mountains. Indeed, of the districts that have been returned, the number he carried are few, while those in which he made a close run are also scarce. Judge Umbel had a walkover nearly everywhere.

A small Republican vote was polled throughout the county. There was no contest of importance on and A. E. Jones had no opposition for the judicial nomination. Mr. Jones estimates his vote somewhere in the neighborhood of 3,000. Although not complete returns have been received it is said that O. J. Garwood will be the Republican nominee for Poor House Director. His most dangerous opponent is Solomon J. Hensacker, but Garwood seems to be leading by a good margin. There is no doubt as to the nomination of W. T. Kennedy for Jury Commissioner.

For the other Democratic nomination it looks like George M. Strickler for Poor House Director and J. G. Harford for Jury Commissioner. Both men are leading their respective fields by a good margin.

There being no fight on in either party for delegates to the State Convention, all the candidates on both tickets were elected to this office. One of the quietest days in years marked the primary election Saturday when the voting passed off without a ripple of excitement. A light vote was cast. The Republican had no contest on any general issue. Judge R. E. Umbel, who landed the

BREATHITT COUNTY'S SHERIFF IS KILLED

He Was a Feud Leader and One of His Enemies Caught Him Unawares.

United Press Telegram.
JACKSON, Ky., June 7.—Edward Catfish, former Sheriff of Breathitt county and one of the most notorious Kentucky feud leaders, was last night fatally shot by an unknown man while quietly sitting in his home in this county. The shot is supposed to have been done by some one of his numerous feud enemies, but no trace of the shooter's identity has been secured. Catfish, although Sheriff of the county and a deacon in the church, was the right hand man of Judge James Hargis, the feudist, who after being cleared of four murder charges growing out of the Hargis-Cockrell feud, was shot down by his son and killed.

Reach Coal at Filbert.
The Patterson Contracting Company of Pittsburgh engaged in sinking two shafts at the $1,000,000 Filbert plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, succeeded in reaching the coal at a depth of 600 feet in shaft No. 1. This shaft will be ready to operate in July. Shaft No. 2 will not be down to the coal before the middle of August.

Sues Coal Company.
Alleging his horse stepped into a pile of hot ashes in a roadway and was so burned as to be unfit for service temporarily, Alexander D. Ross of Monongahela City has sued the People's Coal Company for $100 damages. Negligence of the company's employees is charged.

Drowns in Reservoir.
Doe Payne, a Uniontown negro, was drowned in the reservoir on E. S. Hackney's farm near Uniontown, Sunday. He declared that he could swim and plunged into the reservoir, which contained 20 feet of water.

PERKY BEETLES PUNY.

SMITHFIELD, June 6.—There is a terrible crop of the pesky Colorado potato beetle in this section. The warm days are hatching myriads of them and they are giving the truck gardeners all sorts of trouble and inconvenience.

There were scarcely any of these insects about here last summer but the late growers are having more of their share of trouble this year.

Democratic nomination, carried Greater Connellville on a ratio of more than 3 to 1 over his opponent, H. S. Dumbauld. Mr. Dumbauld was a poor second and made no light of consequence in any ward. A light vote was polled and the total was something over 800 in the greater borough for the Democrats to about 350 for the Republicans. The only fight on among the latter party was over the Central Commission, in even this did not cause a great deal of interest.

G. M. Strickler led the Democratic ticket for Poor House Director while George McCray was favorite for Jury Commissioner. All of the State delegates were elected John Lagan, Jr. received the largest vote of the five.

The Republicans offered a plethora of candidates, especially for Poor House Director. There were 10 men after this office. Jacob Atkinson led the ticket here by a large margin; one of the advantages of possessing a name beginning with "A" he headed the list and copied most of the votes. Alexander T. Dougherty, the present Jury Commissioner, was third down to defeat. Rice Ligon and T. H. Ryan had no opposition in the Third Ward. George W. Knox and Albert Means were chosen in the Fourth, James Cuddy being the defeated candidate.

The Fifth handed out a surprise, two well known men being included in the list of "also rans." They were George W. Conner and George W. Campbell. J. G. Wilson also failed to land, L. P. Hyman and D. R. Smuck being the fortunate candidates.

CANDIDATES TELL ELECTION VIEWS

Judge Umbel Expected Outcome; Dumbauld and Jones Want More Time.

Judge Umbel had no formal statement to make this afternoon. He was busy in making all morning and called The Courier upon the first opportunity after being relieved from his duties during recess.

Mr. Jones said he was satisfied with the outcome, "although it was hardly more than I expected. I am deeply grateful to my friends for their hearty support."

Mr. Dumbauld said this morning: "I will have a statement after the vote had been counted and compiled, and I have had time to analyze it."

Mr. Jones said that he would have a statement reviewing the election and several important features connected with it on Wednesday.

SUTHERLAND WINS

Enough Votes to Indicate His Election in Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Enough returns from the primaries in Washington county yesterday have been received to show that J. G. Sutherland was nominated for Recorder by the Republicans over John H. Moffit, Alex. D. Young and H. U. Seaman. For the Republican nomination for Poor Director, R. C. Buchanan won out over R. W. Wolfe, Albert B. Conger, Joseph M. Clark and W. R. Gunn. The contest for Jury Commissioner is a close fight between J. Warren Vankirk and John D. Dague. The Republican delegates to the State Convention are John Cunningham, Thomas M. Reaso, H. R. Myers, James Grimes, John W. Fry and W. W. Hawkins. On the Democratic ticket Robert Knox was nominated for Recorder; Joseph Wilson, Jr., for Director of the Poor, and William Barclay for Jury Commissioner. R will require an official count to determine the successful candidates for delegates to the State convention.

Gypsies Arrested.
Three gypsy women were arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Rottler and Officer Lova. One was arrested in Greenwood and the other two on the Young bridge. They were ordered to leave town by Burgess Evans.

Vote Was Light In Greater Connellville; Umbel, Way in Lead.

Across the river Dr. G. W. Gallagher and W. J. Herbert won over R. A. Smith and W. O. Whitman in the Sixth Ward while R. S. Brashear and V. Bert Ritchey were successful in their fight on P. D. Shumaker and G. M. Jackson, the latter a negro.

For delegates to the State convention there was no opposition, former Sheriff M. A. Kiefer leading the ticket in the Greater City. T. B. Donnelly was second, and J. R. Davis and C. C. Carter third and fourth with the same total vote.

Alfred M. Jones, the judicial candidate, had no opposition and polled 231 of the top votes cast for this office. Judge Umbel was given 3 Republican votes and H. S. Dumbauld 4. One vote was cast in the Fourth Ward for Rev. John T. Burns and one in the Fifth for P. S. Newmyer.

Two parties have practically lost their identity in Connellville. They are the Prohibition and Socialist organizations. There was when the Prohibition vote was a big figure in the results here, especially in the old Fourth Ward, but at the primary Saturday the party sank down to the lowest point, the Socialists polling more votes. The total vote in the borough was 9 Socialist and 6 Prohibition ballots. In the First Ward no Prohibitionists and two Socialists voted; in the Second and Third neither party had a ballot; in the Fourth it was a 2 to 2 in favor of the Socialists; in the Fifth the ratio was the same; in the Sixth there were two Prohibition votes and none in the Seventh. One Socialist ballot was cast on the West Side; that in the Seventh Ward.

The Uniontown vote was as follows:

First Ward 30
Second Ward 30
Third Ward 30
Fourth Ward 30
Total 120

AT LEAST 19 DIE IN PIER COLLAPSE

Two Hundred Precipitated Into Lake Two Hundred Precipitated Into Lake Afternoon.

United Press Telegram.
NEW ORLEANS, June 7.—The latest reports from the disaster of yesterday at Lake Ponchartraine, caused by the collapse of a pier, indicate 19 lives were lost. So far only 10 bodies have been recovered and it is impossible to ascertain the exact number drowned and killed. In addition to those who lost their lives in the water others were crushed to death by the wreckage of the pier. The dead and injured were excursionists going to Mandeville to spend the day.

When the excursion steamer returned to pick up the excursionists on the return trip it was unable to land at the regular wharf. They then endeavored to tie up at a smaller pier used by fishing boats and once 200 people rushed on to it. The small pier pulled from its fastenings and the 200 people were precipitated into eight feet of water. Scores of rescues were made but with 200 people struggling in the water all could not be taken out.

HE SENT CHECK FOR $1,200

Request Made By The Editor of The Courier on June 3 and Letter Containing Check Received This Morning—No Comment.

Henry Clay Frick is certainly doing his share of the good work of making church bells of Connellville what they should be, musical and pleasing to the ear. He has presented the Slavish Lutheran Church with $1,200 for the purpose of putting chimes in the belfry of their neat little church on the South Side.

At the request of Rev. M. Tomaschka, pastor of the church, Henry P. Snyder, editor of The Courier, wrote Mr. Frick under date of June 3, presenting the request. Mr. Snyder said: "The enclosed editorial in The Courier has brought down upon me a visit from the very worthy pastor of the Slavish Lutheran church to Connellville who quite agrees with me that the bells of every well-regulated, kind-hearted, public-spirited Christian church should be chimes, and who expresses the hope that your beneficence may extend to his humble church. He thinks that 1,200 would be a goodly sum for the purpose of putting chimes in the belfry of his church from Mr. Lynch."

I leave the matter with you. The editorial in question referred to Mr. Frick's generosity in agreeing to put chimes in the new Trinity Lutheran Church, and was as follows: "The promise of Henry Clay Frick to present the new Trinity Lutheran Church with a set of chimes will be a great blessing to the church. The promise of Henry Clay Frick to present the new Trinity Lutheran Church with a set of chimes will be a great blessing to the church. The promise of Henry Clay Frick to present the new Trinity Lutheran Church with a set of chimes will be a great blessing to the church."

We are inclined to think that there should be a thorough ordinance of a State law forbidding any other kind of church bells. It is certain that some church bells are trying to kill people. They brazen, discordant and jarring clang is a torture to the nervous system, and in some cases physicians say it is seriously harmful to their patients.

The church bell was originally designed for the purpose of calling the people together for worship. In the early days, when clocks and watches were few, the bells were necessary, but in these modern times, when almost every house has one or more clocks, there is no longer any use for the bells as timekeepers.

If they are preserved for musical purposes, they should be made to conform to a musical standard in order that they may avoid the charge of being public nuisances and become as they should be the pride and joy of the community.

The reply of Mr. Frick was brief and business like and altogether characteristic. It enclosed a check to Mr. Snyder for the amount, "for the purpose mentioned in your letter of 3rd instant."

DUNBAR RESIDENT DIES IN THE ROAD

James Warman Suddenly Expires While On His Way From the Furnace.

DUNBAR, June 7.—James Warman, an aged resident of this place, dropped dead Saturday evening on the Franklin Road while on his way from the Furnace store to the home of his son John at Hill Farm. He was apparently in good health and had been to the store and was on his way home when it is supposed he felt tired and sat down on the road side and never regained consciousness having suffered a stroke of paralysis. The deceased resided here about eight years, having come here from West Virginia.

He is survived by two sons, John and James, and two daughters, Mrs. Hixon of this place and Mrs. J. Toole of Fairbance. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hixon on Railroad street. Services will be conducted by Rev. D. E. Minard, internment in Mt. Auburn cemetery.

DEMOCRATS DECLARE AGAINST ONE-TERM ISSUE.

The primary elections of last Saturday were unusually quiet and the vote indicates that they excited but little interest. This was due to the fact that, with one exception, the nominations were unimportant. There was even an absence of the usual warm fight for the control of the Republican County Committee.

The contest between the rival candidates for the Democratic judicial nomination scarcely rose to the dignity of a fight. It was tame and apathetic compared with previous contests of this character. It was probably rendered so because Dumbauld couldn't open a bar and Umbel couldn't. The Saltillo township section of Jacksonian Democracy frankly admitted that he had no bar, and he notified his opponent that he would not stand for the use of one against him. Henry Clay township's favorite son had no desire to squander his money and he did not apparently think it necessary for him to do so.

The issues of the contest, if it could be said to have had any, were set forth very fully to the people through the columns of the local press. There was but one worthy of the name, and that was the one-term issue. Candidate Dumbauld stood squarely on that issue and tried to make it appear that Judge Umbel was under a similar pledge, but the evidence in support of this contention was not conclusive.

At all events, an emphatic majority of the Democratic voters have declared in favor of continuing able judges in office, and incidentally they have voted Judge Umbel an able judge.

THE COKE REGION'S SUPERIOR MINE PRACTICE.

The agitation of the American Mining Congress in favor of the imposition of a tonnage tax on coal production, for the establishment of a relief fund for the benefit of the families of miners accidentally killed in the mines, develops the fact that the greatest death rate from accidents of this character is in West Virginia, while Pennsylvania's rate is among the lowest.

This is not an accidental fact caused by wholesale laxity, because Pennsylvania has had her share of them. Eliminating them the average would probably still remain. We have a right to assume, therefore, that the Pennsylvania mine practice is superior to that of most, if not all, the other States.

We have always maintained that it was so, and that the fact was due to the earnest desires and efforts of the Pennsylvania operators, notably the leading operators of the Connelville coke region, to perfect their methods.
It was this fact, perhaps, which led the Legislature to kill the mummy-shod mining bill, prepared under the auspices of the Chief Mine Inspector, after the representatives of the Con-nelville region had protested strenuously against it. In view of their past record, the State lawmakers no doubt thought the operators could be relied on to establish and maintain all wise and proper reforms in mine practice.

The operators can also be trusted to establish such relief funds as may be necessary, and they will probably have to be trusted with the job, because any legislation on the subject will be of doubtful constitutionality.

The Uniontown police will be required to report every hour. The rule is a good one and might be applied to the Connelville police. The chief of the department will tell him he can know whether or not his men are on the job, on the hour at least.

Burgess Evans gives the Undergrad-ates one-half hour to vacate the building. This is ample time in desirable weather.

Candidate Dumbauld is convinced that the Post of 59 want a picture of the Post of 59.

When a man says a woman is a witch he means that she is an angel, but when a woman says a man is a devil she means that she is a devil.

We are having a great deal of the Post of 59 just now but we will hope that it will return again on its 50th anniversary.

Trout are reported to be scarce in the Fayette county streams, but the fishing under good weather conditions and with plenty of the right kind of bait will continue to be popular.

The docket of the June Court does not indicate any delinquency of crime.

When work is short labor is super-abundant and the workmen sometimes suffer when work is plenty, labor is short, and work sometimes suffers.
Upon the whole, however, the last condition is vastly preferable to the first.

The School Board of Greater Con-nelville is due to organize this evening. Like the Town Council it contains some vacancies.

We do not understand why the wives of lost husbands always insist on searching for them in Connelville.
They go to Uniontown.

Sunday felt like the Good Old Sunday. It is to be hoped that the Rainmaker will put away his can and let the atmosphere be dried out and fried up by Old Sol.

North Union township justice is setting the bloodhound detective after the trading the bound into temptation.

We are having enough weather trouble without any return of the Post

ANNUAL OUTING AT KILLARNEY PARK

Will Spend a Day Up in Beautiful Indian Creek Valley—Arrange Street Meetings.

At the regular meeting of the Minterial Association, held this morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C.
A., it was decided to hold the annual outing of the ministers at Killarney park Thursday, June 21. An invitation will also be extended to ministers from nearby towns including Scottdale, Mt. Pleasant, Dunbar and Dawson. The local ministers and their families are all very enthusiastic over the coming outing and a most enjoyable day is looked forward to.
The picnic will leave here at 8 O'clock No. 48 due here at 9 O'clock.

Owing to several of the ministers not being able to attend the meeting, no definite arrangements were made for the annual outdoor union meeting to be held during the months of July and August. It is likely that small arrangements will be completed for the services at the next regular meeting of the association. Rev. J. L.
Proudt and Rev. E. A. L. Edmunds were appointed a committee to make arrangements for outdoor services to be held in front of the First Presbyterian Church on West Main street on Saturday evening during the months of July and August.

FIRST REHEARSAL IS CALLED FOR CHORUS

J. S. McKee Will Lead the Voices Participating in Convention.

The first rehearsal of the big chorus which is to participate in the Sunday School Convention program, will hold its first rehearsal in the chapel of the Presbyterian Church this evening at 8 o'clock. J. S. McKee will lead the singers. He desires every singer in the local churches to participate.

J. L. Henry of the Tulsa-Medford Company, of Chicago, will lead the chorus during the convention. He will come to Connelville next Monday night and will immediately assume charge of the rehearsals in the Colonial theatre.

Next Monday night the local visitors for the religious census will meet in the Y. M. C. A. building at which time the districts and work will be mapped out. Each local visitor is to be accompanied by one from out of town on his rounds.

Attempted Robbery on West Side.

The grocery store of John Patrick at the corner of Main and Second streets, West Side, was broken into last morning about 12:40 o'clock.
Officer Stonor went to the store before anything could be taken. The robbers escaped.

Intricate Mechanism of a Watch.

There are more than 2,000 distinct operations in the work of assembling a watch.

DIED.

Patrick McIntyre, little son of Mr.
and Mrs. J. McIntyre, died Saturday at the family residence after a several days' illness of pneumonia, aged one year, ten months and 28 days.
Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Eleanor M. Greenwood, wife of Edward M. Greenwood, died at her home here Saturday morning from tuberculosis after a year's illness.
She was a daughter of Thomas Cline and was born in Brownsville, but after her marriage the family lived in Illinois several years. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Marie Guwood, and three sisters and one brother, Mrs. William Hamilton, wife of the Rev. William Hamilton, Washington, Pa. Mrs. O. T. Hilde and John Cline, both of Uniontown. Funeral services will be held at her home at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with interment in Brownsville.

FIVE KILLED BY BUTCHER KNIFE.

An Employee in Abattoir Suddenly Becomes Insane.

THREE ARE SERIOUSLY STABBED

John Murphy, Expert Wielder of Knife in Slaughter House, Turns on His Fellow-Employees—Many Escape Death by Narrow Margin.

Boston, Mass., June 7.—Five workmen were killed and three more seriously stabbed by John Murphy, who ran amuck in the plant of the North Packing and Provision company at Somerville.

The dead are: Thomas Crow, stabbed through heart; Michael Janicus, stabbed through the heart.

Hubert Smith, stabbed through heart; James Cortes, single, stabbed through the heart.

An unidentified foreigner. The injured are: John Cheever, stabbed over the heart and in the neck; Dr. John S. Hayes, a United States meat inspector, head almost severed, stabbed in the bowels and near the heart, dying; an unidentified man.

Dexterous With the Blade. Murphy, the slayer, lives at Somerville. He is a married man with three children. He has worked for the company five years and has been regarded as a sober, steady and industrious man. From his occupation of cutting heads off swine he had acquired a fierce dexterity with a blade and a keen eye for a knife. One cut and the head was severed.

While working on the seventh floor with other workmen Murphy suddenly became insane. At this moment Dr. Hayes, the meat inspector at the factory, came on his usual rounds. He spoke calmly to Murphy.

The pig killer's brain snapped. He ceased his regular, mechanical plunge at the row of passing swine, stepped down from his little platform and, without warning, plunged his knife into Dr. Hayes's groin. Dr. Hayes staggered. The blow attracted no attention on account of the pig moving machinery. As a matter of fact, the sight of a man flourishing a knife was about the last thing to make men take notice in this slaughtering place.

Caught Him Over the Heart. Dr. Hayes had not received a death wound, so the lunatic Murphy made another practical stab at him, catching him above the heart. The nine-inch blade hit cruelly deep and Dr. Hayes sank to the floor with a wound said to be fatal.

Swiftly Murphy ran along the row of still uncarcasses and, without warning, ran on, one stroke to each man. He hit nine men in all. By this time the screams of the slain men rose over the roar of the machinery. Other workmen turned and ran toward the maniac. Murphy threw down his knife. With great agility he darted toward the doors leading to the street. There he met Arthur Dearborn and Richard Butler, fellow employees. They guessed something was wrong. They were sure of it when Murphy grabbed a pair of scalding water and hurled it at them.

Dearborn, a husky man, quick on the reach, hit across and landed on Murphy's jaw. Murphy staggered. Butler closed with the maniac. The two men pinned him to the floor. As other men came tumbling down the stairs they helped Murphy.

About the junction the police arrived and Murphy, kicking, biting and screaming, was handcuffed and put in the patrol wagon, where he was kept until he was landed in the Somerville police station.

Employees Fled For Lives.

"More than 100 employees," said the manager of the plant, "were driven from the abattoir when Murphy attacked on his wild rush through the six floors and basement of the building, and not a few escaped death by a narrow margin."

Dr. E. W. Clark of West Somerville, a United States physician at the plant, saw the attack on Dr. Hayes, and, at Hayes's command, hastened to aid a doctor.

Murphy followed Clark, and the latter ran into a side door. Murphy followed, completely blocking the doorway. A butcher shouted to the doctor to get out.

A sudden change had come over the lunatic, for, a minute later, he stepped to one side and, with a pleasant "Hello, doctor," allowed Dr. Clark to pass.

Employees who worked near Murphy said he seemed to pay attention to his slaughtering knife of late, and had sharpened it often.

When City Physician C. C. Towne attempted to examine him Murphy sprang at him and attempted to kick him. No further attempt was made to examine him.

CRAZED BY ARREST

Woman Kills Herself and Two Children When Husband Is Taken. St. Louis, June 7.—Twelve hours after her husband, John Gleasoner, had been taken from home by the police under the charge of embezzling $275, Mrs. Martha Gleasoner was found dead in bed by the side of the dead bodies of her children, Arnette, eight years old, and John, Jr., five years old.

CHICAGO PHYSICIAN HELD AFTER ODD DEATH OF WIFE.

The Chicago police are holding Dr. Haldane Clemons, a prominent young physician, whose wife was found dead in her home after what was reported a case of burglary. The theory at first was that burglars had chloroformed Mrs. Clemons and that the drug had caused her death. Later the detectives grew suspicious of conflicting stories regarding the burglar episode and arrested Dr. Clemons. He was allowed to attend the funeral of his wife under guard and stoutly denied any complicity in the murder, if such it was.

The room was filled with gas and the police advanced the theory that the mother closed the room and turned on the gas. Nicholas Gleasoner, a brother, broke into the room and discovered the lifeless form. All were in night robes. It is supposed that the arrest of her husband preyed on Mrs. Gleasoner's mind, driving her insane.

FAVORS MARRIAGE.

Senator Depew Advises Graduates Not to Remain Single.

Philadelphia, June 7.—"Get married," was the advice given by United States Senator Depew of New York to the graduates of the Medical-Chiropractic college at the commencement exercises here.

"Don't marry until you are ready," he warned to ask any young woman unless you can support her and yourself," continued Senator Depew, "but don't be misled by the mistake of waiting until you get too much money. It is surprising how few little two can live on and you will have a home."

"Don't waste your time, either. You will have plenty of it. If you are married you will have just as much time as if you were single. If you know how to find it. Your wife will give you plenty of time waiting for her. Don't fret and fume during this interlude—read. I have known men to pick up a liberal education reading while waiting for their wives to get ready to go out."

ONLY WATER MAIN LEAK

Water Gushing in Street Thought to Have Had Medicinal Properties. Culver, Ind., June 7.—For several days Culver citizens and cottagers at Lake Maxinkuckee have been drinking water that gushed up from the middle of the main street. It was said to be rich in medicinal properties, and two physicians prescribed it for their patients.

Those who drank were getting fat, and two citizens made plans to organize a company to bottle the water and place it on the market. But the town council stepped in and insisted that the water belonged to the city, as it was in the middle of the main street.

It has just been discovered that the "flowing well" was a leak from an old water main.

BOY DIES IN FIRE

Apartment House Burns and Many Have Narrow Escape.

Dallas, Tex., June 7.—In a fire which started in the kitchen of the Knight apartment house, Elmer and Harwood streets, Herschel Dannelly, eight years old, was burned to death; his father, D. C. Dannelly, and Charles Vandenberg, were probably fatally hurt and several others were injured.

Sixty-two persons were asleep in the building when the fire started. A number jumped from windows to awnings and then to the street. Many thrilling rescues were made by firemen. The damage is $40,000.

DIED A NATURAL DEATH

Theory That Lawyer Patrick Did Not Plan Killing of W. M. Rice.

St. Louis, June 7.—John T. Miliken, brother-in-law of Albert T. Patrick, now serving a life sentence in Sing Sing prison for the death of William Marsh Rice, who has spent a fortune in trying to free Patrick, in a statement says that Patrick was not guilty.

Mr. Miliken's theory is that Rice was not murdered, that the Texas millionaire died a natural death, and that he was not chloroformed by his valet, Charles F. Jones, as Jones testified.

DARES DEATH TO SAVE HIS WIFE.

Louis Cohen Jumps Into Niagara River Above Cataract.

WIFE DIES IN HIS ARMS

When Despondent Woman Leaps To End Her Life Husband Follows Without Hesitation—Man Battles For Her Life, But His Strength Gives Out.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 7.—Louis Cohen of Buffalo saw his young wife leap into the swirling river between second and third Siskin islands only 150 feet above the brink of the cataract. Without a moment's hesitation he followed her, caught her hand and struggled desperately to save her. Mrs. Cohen probably died in her husband's arms. Before it was possible to bring sufficient help an hour had passed, during all of which Cohen was making frantic attempts to reach the shore. But the struggle against the current at this point was beyond merely human muscle. Fortune aided him. With his wife tightly clasped to him he felt himself bump into a grounded tree stump and on this he got a grip with his one free hand.

He frantically shouted for help and word was carried to the reservation police, but it was nearly an hour after Mrs. Cohen jumped into the river that Officer James Martin arrived with ropes and Representative James S. Shuman and three other men.

Three times they threw the rope before it felt within Cohen's grasp. When he did catch it he was too weak to tie it about his own or his wife's waist. The two were twenty feet away from shore and it was extremely difficult owing to the precarious nature of the footing to make a good cast. Pinned against the tree stump by the terrible rush of water all the strength had gone out of Cohen. And, too, he had been unable to keep his wife's face above water.

Once Cohen had hold of the rope the men on shore began to pull and Officer Martin who was in the front slipped and fell into the stream, but quickly regained his feet. When within fifteen feet of the shore Cohen lost his grip on his wife's body and it was carried off down stream and was lost to view.

Cohen was so far gone when the rescuers got him on shore that he could not speak for ten minutes. His first words were: "She is out there. Go and get her. She is dead. She died in my arms."

Meanwhile a crowd had gathered. Supper, Perry and Chief Shoemaker skinned the Goat Island shore looking for the body, but could see nothing of it. Cohen joined them, always insisting that the body must have stopped short of the cataract and might be rescued by men daring enough.

William Barnett and Hugh Brown, who had joined the searchers, finally spied the body. It was held fast by a rock, about 100 feet above the brink. Without ropes Brown and Barnett waded out into the stream and moving carefully over the slippery rocks reached the body. Just as Brown touched the body the current caught it again and it whirled around in an eddy. It was with the greatest difficulty that the two men brought the body to land. Life was quite extinct. Cohen says that he was so far gone that he was unable to see his wife's face. He is a robust man, and quickly recovered from the shock of his experience.

INCENDIARIES BURN CHURCH

Methodist Edifice in Chicago Is Badly Damaged.

Chicago, June 7.—The Austin Methodist Episcopal church, Ohio street and Central avenue, was destroyed by a fire believed to be of incendiary origin.

The incendiary theory is strengthened by the fact that the holiness church, only a short distance from the destroyed edifice, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 by a fire shortly before the destruction of the Methodist church. The damage to the Methodist church is $75,000.

NIGHT SESSIONS ALL WEEK

Senate Will Try to Finish Up Debate on Woolen Schedule.

Washington, June 7.—As night sessions will be held throughout the week the indications point to a completion of the woolen schedule by Thursday or Friday. No program has been outlined as to the schedules to be taken up next, but it is probable that some work will be done upon the free list.

A meeting of the finance committee was held today and the policy of the senate outlined.

GETS CHECKS MIXED

John D. Malls $77,000 to Pay His Bill For Water Rent.

Cleveland, June 7.—John D. Rockefeller paid a $15 water bill in the village of East Cleveland, where his Forest Hill home is located, with a check for $75,073.14.

The check was mailed from New York and evidently the envelopes became mixed.

JOHNSON'S SUCCESS.

"Godsend To Negro 'Race,'" Says Booker T. Washington.

New York, June 7.—Jack Johnson's title to the heavyweight championship of the world was the basic theme in a sermon preached by Booker T. Washington to the Negro Men's Business League of New York. The fight of a name was not mentioned, however.

"In the last analysis," Dr. Washington told his hearers, "success is what counts. Success, despite race or color, makes the man on top respect you. What the world wants is success. Hold up your successes, don't bemoan your gloom."

"You remember when a certain member of our race went to Australia to do a job; warnings were sounded that the color line would be drawn. The question was put to him: 'Are you the man that will make the color line?' Now, suppose he had gone to Australia crestfallen, saying that he was a negro and much oppressed, would he have won? It is a godsend that he did win. It shows to the negro race what determination will do."

TEN LIVES ARE LOST

Convicts Overpower Warden and a Bloody Fight Ensnues.

Tulsa, June 7.—A desperate battle was fought in the prison here which ended in eight prisoners and two wardens being killed and four wardens and two soldiers being mortally wounded.

Five convicts, who were condemned to death, while being transferred to the south cells, overpowered the warden, a constable and a constable. They ran through the corridor shooting down every one they encountered.

Much Wealth at Yildiz Kiosk.

Washington, June 7.—Jewelry to the amount of several millions of dollars, according to reports, was discovered at Yildiz Kiosk, the home of the late sultan of Turkey, in addition to the ten millions of dollars either in cash or negotiable securities found there.

THUGS TORTURE WOMEN

Feet Burned by Candles by Robbers After Money.

Somerset, Pa., June 7.—Somerset county is aroused over a brutal outrage by five thugs upon three women at the mining village of Belmont in Jenuar township.

The victims: Mrs. Minnie Ashe, age ninety; Mrs. Mary Ober, age sixty, daughter of Mrs. Ashe; Miss Minnie Ober, daughter of Mrs. Ober.

There was only $5.00 in cash in the house and believing the women were despoiling them the robbers bound the three women, held lighted candles to their bare feet and abused them in other ways. For binding the women picture wire was used. The sharp cords cut deep and the women suffered greatly.

They pleaded with the burglars not to leave them thus tied. One of the women sought the thugs to be merciful by robbing a certified check on a Somerset bank for $500, but one of the robbers said: "That check might give the whole gang away if we ever presented it at the bank."

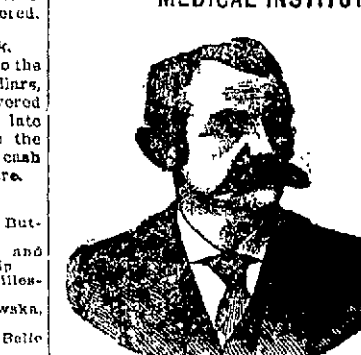

Governor Will Remain With C. H. A. D. Cincinnati, June 7.—That Governor Judson Harmon will continue as the head of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad for several months is the belief in railroad circles in this city.

Five Die When Wharf Caves In.

New Orleans, June 7.—By the caving in of an excursion boat wharf at Mandeville, La., five lives are known to have been lost and it is feared that others have perished.

ALLEGED LEPER HELD AT WASHINGTON, D. C.; HIS WIFE, WHO AIDS FIGHT FOR LIBERTY.

John R. Early, the North Carolina leper, who is being held on a government reservation in Washington as a leper, is making a desperate fight for his liberty, aided by his faithful young wife, Dr. L. Duncanson, a New York skin specialist, has made a private examination of Early, and this has given rise to a hot controversy among the health experts of the District of Columbia. Health Officer Woodward has written a letter to Dr. Duncanson demanding to know why he made the examination. Early's case has attracted attention all over the United States, and he and the government health authorities are receiving thousands of letters from sympathetic persons. Early quit taking medicine last November and strenuously insists that he has no sign or symptom of the dread disease. He goes about the yard surrounding his quarters and seems in

The Scrap Book

He Had Another Day.

Pat McGuire was an inveterate drinker. For many years he had been addicted to the use of liquor, and although he signed numerous pledges, he was unable to break himself from the habit. Finally, after being arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly, Pat told the magistrate of his unsuccessful fight against liquor and asked the magistrate to help him keep sober.

The magistrate was interested and promised to aid him all he could. "Pat," said he, "I shall help you as much as I can. So the next time you become intoxicated I want you to report to me on the following day."

Pat promised. About two weeks later Pat staggered into the magistrate's office with a load he should have made two trips for. "Morin," the magistrate said, "I want to see you on the following day."

"I'll be there," said Pat. "I don't have to report this drunk until tomorrow."

"A friend of mine," said an automobile expert, "was doing some rather tall spending one summer on a road that had a tollgate every five miles or so. My friend was in a great hurry. He was trying on a heavy wagon, to break a record, hence it weighed him when he came to a closed gate to see the tollkeeper continue reading his paper and make no effort to let the car through."

"Now, then, my man, hurry up and open the gate," shouted his friend. "Are you asleep there?" "You're not 70048, are you?" said the gatekeeper without rising from his chair. "Yes; that's right. Hurry up!" "Oh, there's lots of time," said the gatekeeper. "You ain't due here yet for eighteen minutes, according to what the last gatekeeper has just telephoned me."

Fate. The sky is cloudy, the rocks are bare. The spray of the waterfall is white in the air. The winds are out with the waves at play. And I shall not tempt the sea today.

The trail is narrow, the wood is dim. The path leads to the arching limb. And the bird's wings are spread at play. And I shall not join in the chase today.

But the ship sailed safely over the sea, and the hunters came from the chase in glee. And the town that was built upon a rock was swallowed up in the earthquake shock.

The Policeman's Reason. "Is it true that many of these Morones have half a dozen wives each?" asked a visitor to Salt Lake City of a policeman who was stationed near the temple, says the Saturday Evening Post.

"Sure," said the policeman. "Well, will you kindly tell me why on earth a man wants to marry half a dozen wives?"

"I dunno," said the policeman, "unless he thinks that maybe he can get a good one out of the bunch."

An Instantaneous Cure. During the cattle plague of 1896 a farmer who had lost a number of his cows grew so depressed that he fully persuaded himself he had also contracted the disease. The medical man whom he consulted tried in vain to laugh him out of his fears, but subsequently, being fond of a joke, pretended to agree with the patient's views and solemnly told him if he would attend to his instructions he would be cured. He then gave the farmer a prescription, which he directed should be taken to a neighboring drugstore, but when the latter opened the envelope and read the contents he was as much startled as the farmer. For the prescription was as follows: "This man has the cattle plague. Take him into the back yard and shoot him according to act of parliament."

The cure was instantaneous.—Dundee Advertiser.

Let Himself Out. Luigi Lablache, the singer, was a giant in size. "One of his boots," says a biographer, "would make a good portmanteau. One of his gloves would clothe an infant." There is a humorous exaggeration in the statement, but the fact remains that he was certainly an enormous man. It is recorded of him that he was very generous and also a lover of jokes. At one time he was staying in Paris at the same hotel with Tom Thumb. An English tourist, who had been making strenuous efforts to meet the latter, one day burst into the great basso's apartment. Seeing the giant before him, he hesitated and apologized.

"I was looking," he said, "for Tom Thumb."

"I am he," answered Lablache in his deepest tones. The Englishman was taken aback. He must have been a trusting soul.

"But," said he, "you were very thin when I saw you yesterday."

"Yes," said Lablache. "That is how I have to appear, but when I get home to my rooms I let myself out and enjoy myself."

The Englishman fled.

Courage. Help us with the grace of courage that we be none of us cut down when we sit lamenting over the ruins of our happiness. Touch us with the fire of thine altar, that we may be up and doing to rebuild our city.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Mark Hanna's Get Rich Scheme. Mr. Dingley was riding one day in the trolley car from the capitol with Mark Hanna. He said: "Mark, you are many years younger than I am, and you have made millions. I never have been able to get ahead of the same in life, and yet my legions have made rich men richer and poor men rich. Now, how do they do it?"

Hanna said, "Dingley, I can tell you right off how to make 25 per cent on your investment."

Dingley turned eagerly to his supposed benefactor and said, "For heaven's sake, Mark, how?"

In this world one must be a little too kind to be kind enough.

"Why," said Hanna, "these five cent tickets upon which we ride are sold by the railroad company in a bunch at 25 per cent discount. There is your fortune, if you invest enough."

Making a Cubbie. A gentleman went into a pipemaker's shop at Edinburgh with the intention of seeing the method of making pipes. When he got in he found only a boy in the shop, so without more ado he thus addressed him:

"Well, my child, I'll give you sixpence if you'll show me how you make your pipes."

"I canna mak a peep, sir," replied the boy. "I can only mak a cubbie."

"A cubbie! What's that, my hincey?"

"It's a short peep," replied the boy, "as men an' women smoke out on."

"Why, I'll give you sixpence an' ye'll show us how ye mak that."

"That's yer sixpence sure," was the reply.

The gentleman gave the boy sixpence, when he took a long pipe and broke a piece off it, saying:

"There, now, sir; that is the way I mak cubbies."

Blucher's Oversight. The Emperor Napoleon received General Blucher at the castle of Finkenstaedt, while he was preparing for the siege of Danzig. Napoleon drew Blucher to a window in an upper story and paid him compliments on his military skills, and Blucher, going away delighted, described the interview to his aide-de-camp.

"What a chance you missed!" exclaimed the aide. "You might have changed the whole course of history."

"How?"

"Why, you might have thrown him out of the window."

Helpful Johnny. Johnny loved his papa, there was no doubt about that, and one morning after he had listened to a long dissertation from the author of his being addressed to his elders on the general uselessness of the vermiform appendix, ending up with the broad statement that he hoped he'd see the day when every appendix in creation was cut out, the little boy resolved upon an agreeable surprise for his daddy. He worked in secret for several days and then sprang it.

"See what I have done for you, daddy!" he said, leading the wretched father into the library and showing him a neat pile of many pages which he had accumulated. "I've cut the appendix out of every book in this library."

It was then that words failed, and Johnny's father, vocabulary made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors.—Judge.

CHAPTER XXXI.

DOROTHY did not move. Her pallor grew more intense, and Kirkwood saw her knuckles tighten beneath the gloves; otherwise her mouth seemed to grow more straight and hard.

"Dorothy," cried the adventurer, with a touch of displeasure. "You must move."

"I heard you," she replied in a little wearily, more than a little contemptuously. "Don't mind him, please, Mr. Kirkwood," with an appealing gesture, as Kirkwood, unable to contain himself, moved restlessly in his chair, threatening to rise. "Don't say anything. I have no intention whatever of coming with this man."

Calender's features twitched nervously. He chewed a corner of his mustache, fixing the girl with a black stare. "Presume," he remarked, after a moment, with slow deliberation, "you're aware that as your father I am in a position to compel you to accompany me."

"I shall not go with you," iterated Dorothy in a level tone. "You may threaten me, but I shall not go. Mr. Kirkwood said Mr. Kirkwood is taking me to Scotland Yard, who will give me a house until I can find a way to take care of myself. That is all I have to say to you."

"Bravo, my dear!" cried Brentwick encouragingly. "And your business, sir?" thundered Calender, his face darkening, then to Dorothy. "You understand, I trust, what this means?" he demanded. "I offer you a home, and a good one. Refuse and you work for your living, my girl! You've forfeited your legacy."

"I know, I know," she told him in cold disdain. "I don't care. You may be kind enough to leave me alone!"

For a breath Calender glowered over her. Then, "I presume," he observed, "that all these heroics are inspired by that whippersnapper Kirkwood. Do you know that he hasn't a brass farthing to show himself with?"

"What has that?" cried the girl indignantly. "Why, it has everything to do with me, my child. As your doing parent I can't consent to your marrying nothing but a year, for I suppose you intend to marry this Kirkwood, don't you?"

There followed a little interval of silence, with the warm blood drained in the girl's face and the red lips trembled as she faced her tormentor. Then, with a quaver that escaped her control, "If Mr. Kirkwood asks me I shall," she stated very simply.

"That," interposed Kirkwood, "is completely understood." His gaze sought her eyes, but she looked away. "You forget that I am your father," sneered Calender, "and that you are a minor. I can refuse my consent."

"But you won't," Kirkwood told him, with reason.

The adventurer stared. "No," he agreed after slight hesitation; "no, I shall interfere. Take her, my boy, if you want her, and a father's blessing into the bargain! The Lord knows I've troubles enough. A parent's lot is not what it's cracked up to be." He paused, looking, ironic. "But," deliberately, "there's still this other matter of the gladstone bag. I don't mind abandoning my parental authority when my child's happiness is concerned, but as for my property—"

"It is not your property," interrupted the girl.

"It was your mother's, dear child. It's now mine."

"I dispute that assertion," Kirkwood put in.

"You may dispute it till the cows come home, my boy. The fact will remain that I intend to take my property with me when I leave this room, whether you like it or not. Now, are you disposed to continue the argument, or may I count on your being sensible?"

"You may put away your revolver, if that's what you mean," said Kirkwood. "We certainly shall oppose you with violence, but I warn you that Scotland Yard—"

"Oh, that be blowed!" the adventurer snorted in disgust. "I can sail circles round any foe that ever blew out of Scotland Yard! Give me an hour's start and you're free to do all the funny business you've a mind to with—Scotland Yard!"

"Then you admit," queried Brentwick civilly, "that you've no legal title to the jewels in dispute?"

"Look here, my friend," chuckled Calender; "when you catch me admitting anything you write it down in your little book and tell the baby on the corner. Just at present I've got other business than to stand round admitting anything about anything. Cap'n, let's have that bag of my dutiful daughters'."

"Here you are," Stryker spoke for the first time since entering the room, taking the value from beneath the chair and depositing it on the table.

"Well, we shan't take anything that doesn't belong to us," laughed Calender, fulfilling with the catch, "not even so small a matter as my own child's traveling bag. A small heavy—gladstone bag," he granted, opening the valise and plunging in one greedy hand, and—just—about—do—for mine!" With which he produced the article mentioned. "This for the discard, cap'n," he laughed contentedly, pushing the girl's valise aside, and, rumbling with stentorian cluth, stood beaming benignantly over the assembled company.

"Why," he exclaimed, "this moment is worth all it cost me! My children, I forgive you freely. Mr. Kirkwood, I felicitate you cordially on having secured a most expensive wife. Really, do you know, I feel as if I ought to do a little something for you both."

The thick, mottled fingers tore nervously at the catch. Eventually he got the bag open. Those about the table bent forward, all quickened by the prospect of for the first time beholding the treasure over which they had fought, for which they had suffered so long.

A heady and incense fragrance pervaded the atmosphere, exhalant from the open mouth of the bag. A silence, indefinitely sustained, impressed itself upon the little audience—a breathless pause ended eventually by a sharp snap of Calender's teeth. "Min-uh!" cried the adventurer in bewilderment. He began to pant.

Abruptly his heavy hands delved into the contents of the bag, like the jaws of a terrible digging in earth. To Kirkwood the air seemed temporarily thick with flying objects. Beneath his astonished eyes a towel fell upon the table—a crumpled, solid towel bearing on its dingy hem the inscription in indelible ink, "Hotel du Commerce, Antwerp."

A tooth mug of substantial earthenware dropped to the floor with a crash. A slimy soap dish of the same manufacture slid across the table and into Brentwick's lap. A battered alarm clock with never a tick left in its abused carcass rang vacuously as it fell by the open bag. The remaining—cups, a dozen or more small, round, golden globes of ripe fruit, perhaps a shade overripe, therefore the more aromatic.

The adventurer slipped out an oath. "Mulehead!" he raged in fury. "Done up, I swear! Done by that infernal sneak—me, blind as a bat!"

He fell suddenly silent, the blood coursing in his face as suddenly broke forth again, haranguing the company.

"That's why he went out and bought those oranges, is it? Think of it—me sitting in the hotel in Antwerp and him juggling in oranges by the bagful because he was fond of fruit! When did he do it? How do I know? If I knew, would I be here, and him the devil knows where this minute? When my back was turned, of course! That's why he was so hot about picking a fight on the boat, eh? Wanted to get thrown off and take to the woods, leaving me with this! And that's why he felt so awful done up he wouldn't take a hand at hunting you two down, hey? I'll camp on his trail for the rest of his natural born days! I'll have his eyeteeth for that! I'll—"

He swayed, gibbering with rage, his countenance frightfully contorted, his fat hands shaking as he struggled for expression.

And then, while yet their own astonishment held Dorothy, Kirkwood, Brentwick and Stryker "speechless," Charles, the mechanician, moved suddenly upon the adventurer.

There followed two metallic clicks. Calender's savings were brushed as if his tongue had been paralyzed. He fell back a pace, dabby jaws pale and shaking, ponderous jaw dropping on his breast, mouth wide and eyes cruized as he shook violently before him his thick, fleshy wrists, securely handcuffed.

Simultaneously the hold mechanician whirled about, bounded eagerly across the door and caught Stryker at the door, his dexterous fingers twisting in the captain's collar as he jerked him back and tripped him.

"Mr. Kirkwood," he cried, "here, please, one moment! Take this man's gun from him, will you?"

Kirkwood sprang to his assistance and without encountering much trouble succeeded in wresting a revolver from Stryker's limp, steel fingers.

Roughly the mechanician shook the man, dragging him to his feet. "Now," he ordered sternly, "you march to that corner, stick your nose in it and be good! You can't get away if you try. I've got other men outside, waiting for you to come out. Understand?"

Trembling like a whipped cur, Stryker meekly obeyed his instructions to the letter.

The mechanician, with a contemptuous laugh, leaving him, strode back to Calender, meanwhile whipping off his goggles, and clapped a hearty hand upon the adventurer's quaking shoulder.

"Well," he cried, "and are you still sailing circles round the men from Scotland Yard. Simmons or Bellows or Sanderson or Calender or Crambstone, or whatever name you prefer to sail under?"

Calender glared at him aghast, then heaved a profound sigh, shrugged his fat shoulders and bent his head in thought. An instant later he looked up. "You can't do it," he informed the detective vehemently. "You haven't got a shred of evidence against me! What's there? A pile of oranges and a peck of trash! What of it? Besides," he threatened, "if you pinch me you'll have to take the girl in too. I swear that whatever stealing was done she did it. I'll not be trapped this way by her and let her off without a squeal. Take me—take her, if you hear?"

"I think," put in the clear, bland accents of Brentwick, "we can consider that matter settled. I have here, my man," nodding to the adventurer as he took up the black leather wallet—"I have here a little matter which may clear up any lingering doubts as to your standing, which you may be disposed at present to entertain."

He extracted a slip of cardboard and at arm's length laid it on the table edge beneath the adventurer's eyes. The latter, bewildered, bent over it for a moment, breathing heavily, then straightened back, shook himself, laughed shortly with a mirthless note and faced the detective.

"It's come with you, now, I guess?" he suggested very quietly.

"The Bannister warrant is still out for you," returned the man. "That'll be enough to hold you on till extradition papers arrive from the States."

"Oh, I'll waive those, and I won't give you any trouble either, I reckon," mused the adventurer, juggling his manacles thoughtfully. "I'm a back number anyway. When a half grown girl, a half baked boy, a dub like Mulready and a clufooted snipe as to Scotland Yard can put it all over me this way, why, I guess it's up to me to go home and retire to my country place up the Hudson." He sighed wearily. "Yep; time to cut it out. But I would like to be free long enough to get in one good lick at that mutt Mulready. My friend, you get your hands on him, and I'll squeal on him till I'm blue in the face. That's a promise."

"You'll have the chance before long," replied the detective. "We received a telegram from the Amsterdam police late this afternoon, saying they'd picked up Mr. Mulready with a woman named Hilda and were holding them on suspicion. 'It seems,' turning to Brentwick, 'they were opening negotiations for the sale of a lot of stones and seemed in such a precious hurry that the diamond merchant's suspicions were aroused. We're sending over for them. Miss Calender, so you can make your mind easy about your jewels. You'll have them back in a few days.'"

"Thank you," said the girl with an effort.
